COVID-19 pandemic

Jefferson has people of interest, no confi med cases

Scott reports firs coronavirus death

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

Although Jefferson County has yet to confirm a single case of the COVID-19 coronavirus as of Monday morning, that could be due as much to the lack of ability to test locally as residents' resistance to the highly contagious and sometimes deadly pandemic that has killed almost 13,000 worldwide including just over 200 in the U.S.

It could also be a geographical benefit and/or validation that the measures being implemented locally — vigilant hand washing and sanitation, social distancing and isolation and the temporary closure of places where residents are most at risk to spread COVID-19 — are working.

Meanwhile, Gov. Eric Holcomb carried social distancing and isolation a step further by ordering Hoosiers to remain in their homes except when they are at work or for permitted activities, such as taking care of others, obtaining necessary supplies, and for health and safety. The order is in effect from March 25 to April 7.

"The next two weeks are critical if we are to slow the spread of COVID-19, and we must slow the spread. You must be part of the solution, not the problem," Holcomb said.

With four confirmed cases in Clark County and one each in Ripley, Jennings and Scott counties — including one of Indiana's six deaths in Scott — Jefferson County is now nearly surrounded by communities with positive cases of COVID-19. Switzerland County, located to the east, is the lone county bordering Jefferson that is also with no confirmed cases.

Jefferson County Health Officer Dr. John Hossler issued a news release Sunday confirming the county has been "hampered by lack of testing availability" but that the lack of confirmed cases should in no way lead the community to let its guard down and break from the precautions that have proven most effective in limiting exposure to the virus in other regions.

"We've got a handful — not many — people we are following as what we call people of interest," Hossler said Monday morning. "There's no way we do not have it here. We continue to advise people who show symptoms to assume you've got it

KSP works 2 deaths Saturday in Trimble

Fatal car accident, domestic shoooting

COURIER STAFF REPORT

Kentucky State Police are investigating two unrelated deaths that took place in Trimble County on Saturday — the first in a single car accident early Saturday morning and the second a domestic shooting that took place later that evening.

In the first, a 28-year-old Trimble County man died in a single car accident Saturday morning on Barebone Road just west of Bedford.

According to Kentucky State Police, Zachary Miles Taylor, of Rowlett Avenue, Bedford, was traveling west on Barebone Road less than a mile from U.S. 42 when his vehicle dropped off the right side of the roadway, crossed back across the highway and went off the left side of the pavement before traveling up a guardrail and through a wooded area before hitting some trees and overturning in nearby Barebone Creek.

The creek bed was mostly dry and Taylor, who was wearing a seat belt, died from trauma sustained in the crash, said the Trimble County Coroner's Office.

The crash was reported by a passerby at 7:53 a.m. but authorities are unsure when the accident actually took place. Taylor was pronounced dead at the scene. Toxicology tests will be conducted and the crash is still under investigation.

The second incident took place late Saturday evening when a domestic dispute led to shots being fired inside and outside of a Bedford residence with Timothy Luke Webster, 48, Madison, pronounced dead at the scene after being fatally shot in the chest by his father, Herman Webster.

According to an investigation by KSP, Timothy Webster allegedly arrived at the residence, located at 32 Callis Lane, late Saturday evening in an intoxicated state and engaged in a verbal altercation with his father, making threats and eventually firing several shots inside the home.

Herman Webster attempted to flee the residence but was followed by Timothy Webster. While still on the property, Herman Webster allegedly fired a separate firearm, striking his son in the chest. Timothy Webster was pronounced dead at the scene by the Trimble County Coroner's Office.

There have been no arrests and no charges filed in the incident at this time. The investigation remains ongoing.

Answers to Coronavirus questions

INDIANAPOLIS — We continue to answer your questions about the coronavirus and the disease it causes, COVID-19 — and there sure are plenty. That's to be expected as the nation convulses from unprecedented lockdowns, quarantines and other interruptions. Here are some questions we received via email, with responses from Side Effects Public Media community engagement specialist Brittani Howell.

What is the incubation period for COVID-19?

The time between catching the virus and experiencing symptoms — the "incubation period" — is 1-14 days but most commonly around five days, according to the World Health Organization. A new study from the Annals of Internal Medicine also supports this timeline.

Are people with high blood pressure at risk for complications if they contract coronavirus?

Coronavirus is more severe for people with underlying health conditions, including heart disease, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Reports from China suggest that hypertension may have been a significant contributing factor in some of the coronavirus deaths. The American Heart Association has resources and guidelines available on its website. If you are experiencing flu-like symptoms, contact your doctor as soon as possible.

I was recently in close contact with someone who tested positive for the coronavirus. Should I go into self-quarantine?

First step: call your doctor. They might want you to come in to get a test. Calling ahead gives them a chance to prepare for your visit.

Clark neighborhood gets historic nod

The Lincoln Heights neighborhood has been added to the National Register of Historic Places as the City of Clarksville's first residential historic district

CLARKSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A southern Indiana neighborhood that includes a mix of design styles, including a stately home known locally as "the Witch's Castle," has been added to the National Register of Historic Places.

The designation for Clarksville's Lincoln Heights neighborhood makes it the Ohio River town's first residential historic district, the News and Tribune reported.

The neighborhood, which spans just three blocks, is "a fairly small, compact neighborhood," said Greg Sekula, Southern Regional Director of Indiana Landmarks.

"But it's got a distinct character. A lot of the yards are nicely landscaped. There aren't any sidewalks. It's got a small, enclave type feel."

Most of Lincoln Heights' streets are dead end lanes that are narrow and composed of pebble concrete that's remained intact over several decades. The area's first homes were built in the late 1920, but construction continued in the 1960s. Many of the homes were built by prominent local business leaders and reflect a mix of designs, including Spanish Revival, Tudor Revival and English cottage, that give Lincoln Heights a unique charm, Sekula said.

One home features a turret that rises above the home's facade. That design, combined with the reputation of a woman who once lived there, earned it the nickname "the Witch's Castle."

"Supposedly, the original owner was a woman who was not a very nice person," said Amy Ramsey, who now owns the house with her husband, John. "They always nicknamed her 'the witch,' so it became the Witch's Castle way back then."

Sekula said Indiana Landmarks and the Town of Clarksville's Historic Preservation Commission worked together to fund the pursuit of the historic designation, which he said could have a stabilizing impact on the neighborhood.

"People like the idea of living in a historic district. It can be a very important community revitalization tool," he said.

and self-quarantine ... it's not overwhelming numbers, but there's a handful and there's probably others who just aren't showing the symptoms."

Hossler said health officials in Jefferson County are in contact and working with officials in surrounding counties that have experienced their first cases of COVID-19 to track details on the virus and where those who are testing positive have been.

"We fully expect to have positive cases in Jefferson County. Please do not let the fact that we have zero cases at this time let you become non-compliant with social distancing and isolation. Let us reassure you that we do not have any positive cases yet in our county and when we do get a positive case, we will let the constituents of Jefferson County know," Hossler said in Sunday's statement.

One of the trends Hossler and other health care professionals are seeing with the spread of COVID-19 in Indiana is that rural counties — more isolated already due to their location — are reporting lower numbers of positive cases.

"In situations like this there are some advantages to living in a rural county. We've always said there are no roads that lead to Jefferson County and that's a good thing at times like this," Hossler said. "You look at the cases in Indiana and you can track a lot of them right along the I-65 corridor. There's a lot of people who pass through those communities along the interstate so at least we've got that to our advantage."

The counter side of that is that rural Jefferson County, and King's Daughters' Health, have been unable to get the test kits needed to confirm whether people of interest are actually positive cases. Hossler has been unable to get an answer as to why, despite talking to state medical officials and state legislators.

"We have been hampered by lack of testing availability and have tried leverage from several different approaches without any success. We have no explanation why there is a shortage but we must move forward as if COVID-19 is now among us," he said. "We suspect that testing capabilities will become more readily available in the next week or so but it is still unknown if and when drive-up testing will become available to everyone."

The Jefferson County Health Department continues to monitor the county's COVID-19 status and work closely with community leaders. The Indiana State Department of Health is trying to source additional test capability but for now certain criteria must be met in order to be tested anywhere and even more so in Jefferson County.

Hossler reiterated that Jefferson County residents who experience any symptoms of COVID-19 — fever, shortness of breath or a dry cough — should "self-quarantine" immediately and continue to do so until fever free for 72 hours (three days without fever reducing medication) and other symptoms have improved, and at least seven days have passed since symptoms first appeared.

He also urged residents "please do not seek medical attention unless you are experiencing life threatening symptoms such as shortness of breath, difficulty breathing, persistent pain or pressure in the chest, new confusion or inability to arouse, bluish lips or face, fever greater than 102 degrees. Those contacting or going to the Emergency Department without life threatening symptoms are overloading our local health care systems, prohibiting those experiencing life-threating illness from receiving prompt service."

He noted that a lot of people who contract COVID-19 will be asymptomatic or experienced only mild symptoms that, depending on their age and health, will do fine without any intervention and by self-quarantining they can reduce the spread of the virus and avoid putting pressure on those who are more susceptible and the health care resources. However, older individuals — those age 65 and older — and patients with comorbidities — pre-existing conditions like COPD, coronary artery disease/ congestive heart failure, and diabetes — are considered high-risk groups that should seek medical evaluation.

Hossler said the health department and local officials are working with and urging local businesses to not require work excuses from health care providers in order to stay home from work if you are experiencing symptoms of COVID-19.

Holcomb said the state will be proactive by allowing as much personnel as possible to work from home over a two week span beginning today.

"I'm setting the example by sending state government personnel home to work to the maximum extent possible and closing our facilities to public interaction beginning Tuesday, for at least the next two weeks," said Gov. Holcomb.

Beginning Tuesday, all state government offices will be closed to in-person public activity until at least April 7. This includes the Government Center complex in Indianapolis and other offices throughout the state, including Bureau of Motor Vehicle branches. State employees will work remotely whenever possible and continue to provide core functions online and by phone. All public safety functions will continue.

In conjunction with the closures, Gov. Holcomb ordered an automatic extension of all state-issued licenses and will advise law enforcement to refrain from issuing citations for a driver's license or registration that expires during this emergency.

The state, in conjunction with the city and all hospital systems in Marion County, has activated a comprehensive emergency operations center to maximize hospital capacity and provide joint coordination. The center is charged with tracking the inventory of all hospital beds, supplies and personnel as the number of COVID-19 patients grows.

"I am proud of our hospital systems that are participating in the initial phase of this process, Eskenazi Health, IU Health, Franciscan Health, Community Health Network, and Ascension," said Gov. Holcomb. "Marion County is where we've seen the most community spread to date, but we will expand this model to other parts of the state."

If they ask you to come to a hospital or other testing location, try to stay a minimum of 6 feet away from other people and, if possible, wear a face mask. Your doctor will be able to advise you on what to do from there, including whether you should stay at the hospital or self-quarantine.

The CDC website recommends steps to take when you're sick. Your local or state health department may have more information.

Which counties have seen cases of coronavirus?

Most, if not all, states are using their health department websites to post regular updates about the coronavirus, including where cases have appeared.

Let's look at Indiana as an example. The state health department's landing page has a banner at the top that says "information about coronavirus (COVID-19): click here to learn more." The banner takes users to the Indiana State Department of Health coronavirus dashboard.

Other state governments have similar coronavirus information in place.

Last body recovered after water sweeps 6 from Indiana roadway

LAUREL, Ind. (AP) — The body of a 13-year-old boy was recovered Saturday in a southeastern Indiana creek, the last six people presumed to have drowned when two vehicles were swept off a roadway after torrential rainfall deluged the region's hill country, authorities said.

The boy's body was found Saturday morning in Sanes Creek, where the bodies of his sisters, ages 7 and 4, and the siblings' mother, Felina Lewis, 35, of Laurel, Indiana, were recovered Friday, said Franklin County Coroner Brian Baxter. The children's names were not expected to be released, he said.

The victims from the other vehicle were identified as Shawn Roberts, 47, and Burton Spurlock, 48. Both men were also Laurel residents.

Baxter said autopsies were pending on all six victims, but they are presumed to have drowned.

A van and a pickup truck carrying the victims were swept off a roadway into Sanes Creek late Thursday or early Friday after a bridge over the creek was partially washed out by floodwaters when the area received 2-3 inches of rain, officials said.

Indiana Conservation Officer Josh Thomas said the creek, a tributary of the Whitewater River, quickly surged into a torrent in the region, which has many steep ridges and valleys that are prone to flooding during heavy rainfall. It's unclear whether the vehicles were washed into the creek at the same time or separately, he said.

"It's terrible. It's hard to fathom," Thomas told The Associated Press. "Down here, with all these hills, things flood quickly. A lot of these creeks are very small, but all of a sudden they're big with a lot of water and a lot of water moving really fast. They go down almost as quickly as they come up."

He said all of the victims' bodies were found along the creek and not in the vehicles.

Laurel is about 55 miles southeast of Indianapolis.

Compliments and thank-yous can create ripple effect of smiles

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I'm an older gent who has been doing weight training for years. I was walking down the beach one day, wearing my swimsuit, and a young lady approached on a bicycle from the opposite direction. She pointed toward me, and I turned to look at the water thinking the dolphins that had been swimming close to shore were back. She said, "No, you!"

Wow. I was blown away. That unsolicited compliment made me feel great the entire day. But it also rang a bell.

Since then, I've started the practice of making appreciative comments, even to strangers, when they're deserved. "That's a really good color for you," or "Good form on that bicep curl" — that sort of thing. The key is that the comment has to be legit. People know when they're being patronized.

And guess what. It doesn't cost a dime and makes both parties feel better. — Doesn't Cost a Dime

Dear Doesn't Cost a Dime: It is interesting that right before you had this beautiful realization of kindness, you saw dolphins. Dolphins structure their lives around a social group, called a "pod." They are said to communicate with the others in their pod by making sounds such as clicks and squeaks.

You took this wave of kindness to heart and applied it to your life. It just goes to show that when we lead with kindness and see the good in others, others see the good in themselves and want to share it, and so on and so on. What a beautiful realization and ripple effect. And, yes, the comments have to be genuine.

One of my favorite expressions is "One smile will get you two." I hope your letter encourages people to be kinder to one another, themselves and the animals that inhabit this beautiful Earth.

Dear Annie: As the mother of three sons, I taught them that the thing that separates men from animals is the ability to write thank-you cards. I now have two grandchildren, and when they can write, I will expect to receive thank-you cards from them. If not, then the phone call I will make will be to my sons to remind them of what they were taught.

Writing in appreciation for what has been done for you is an additional gift to you, not the giver. Children are then taught to be thankful and not feel entitled.

Grandparents should recognize that we are doing our grandchildren a favor when we support them in doing what is right just because it is right. — Indiana Mom and Grandmother

Dear Indiana Mom and Grandmother: Congratulations on giving your sons, and now your grandchildren, the gift of gratitude. Showing appreciation does make both parties feel good. They can't help but feel more joy. As author and philanthropist Lynne Twist shared with Oprah Winfrey, "What you appreciate appreciates" — one of my favorite quotes.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Annie Lane's debut book — featuring favorite columns on love, friendship, family and etiquette — is available as a paperback and e-book. Go to http://www.creators-publishing.com for more information. Alfred Renschler

Alfred William "Alf" Renschler, 90, of Carrollton, Kentucky, died Thursday, March 19, 2020, at the Carroll County Memorial Hospital in Carrollton.

He was born Aug. 15, 1929, in Carrollton, to Alfred Bernerd Renschler and Julia Ellen Frost Renschler. He was a 1948 graduate of Carrollton High School and had retired from the U.S. Postal Service in Carrollton in 1988, having worked as a postal clerk and mail carrier. He was a lifelong merchant in Carrollton, opening his first business 72 years ago as teenager. He opened a small grocery store on Sixth Street in Carrollton that served as his residence throughout life. He had owned Sav-Moor department store on Main Street in Carrollton until it burned in 1978. He operated several teen centers in downtown Carrollton during the 1970s and was the last owner of the Royal Theatre in Carrollton, reluctantly closing it for good in 1970 when the building owner backed out in an offer to sell the property. He had also owned various businesses in Carrollton, Prestonville, Kentucky, and Madison, Indiana.

He was an active member of St. John Catholic Church in Carrollton and had served in the U.S. Army during the Korean Conflict in Japan as a Military Police Officer and Postal Clerk. He lived a simple life but was a giving man who donated generously to animal and wildlife causes, Native American Children's Missions and St. John Catholic Church. His family members were original builders of the St. John Catholic Church and the Carrollton Post Office.

He enjoyed traveling with his sons on many month-long trips over the last decade to parks, Native American Reservations, fireworks events and to visit family in the Pacific Northwest. He enjoyed gardening, reading, family gatherings, senior center activities and "treasure hunting" on the streets of his community.

Survivors include four sons, Dennis Eugene Renschler of Louisville, David Lee Renschler of Carrollton, Garry William Renschler of Battle Ground, Washington, and John Kevin Renschler of Carrollton and Louisville; a sister, Julia "Sis" Schlie of Louisville; and seven grandchildren, a great grandson and several nieces, nephews and friends.

He was preceded in death by his parents; his wife, Betty Jean Hewitt Renschler, in 2003; and two brothers, Lee Thomas "Tom" Renschler and Robert "Bob" Renschler.

All immediate services will be private due to the current public health crisis in accordance with Centers for Disease Control and Prevention guidelines. A public memorial celebration service is planned at a later date but you can send the family a card or give them a phone call at this time to show love and support.

Arrangements are by Tandy-Eckler-Riley Funeral Home in Carrollton. Online condolences, www.tandyecklerrileyfuneralhome.com

HOW TO SPLIT UP LANGUAGE AND CARDS

At a dinner in New York, Mark Twain said, "A verb has a hard time enough of it in this world when it's all together. It's downright inhuman to split it up." To what was he referring?

Probably, like me, you thought it was the split infinitive. Some writers are happy to boldly split the infinitive, where others refuse to go. But actually Twain was talking about German. He claimed that one part of the verb is put down here, one part over yonder, and German is just shoveled in between!

On today's deal, North-South bid to six clubs. After West led the heart queen, declarer won with dummy's king and played a club to his ace. When West discarded a heart, South thought, "Nein, we did not miss sieben Treff." How did declarer continue?

South cashed the spade king and diamond ace, ruffed a diamond on the board and took the spade ace, discarding a diamond from his hand.

Now came the spade queen, which East ruffed with the club seven. Declarer overruffed with the nine, cashed the heart ace and ruffed a heart on the board. East ruffed the next top spade with the club eight, and South overruffed with the queen. South trumped a diamond with dummy's club king, his 11th trick.

Rivers eager to prove critics wrong after joining Colts

By MICHAEL MAROT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — All Philip Rivers really wanted was a chance to play one more NFL season.

So when the Indianapolis Colts gave him a shot, the eight-time Pro Bowler took it.

Rivers officially ended his 16-year tenure with the Chargers on Saturday by signing the $25 million deal he agreed to earlier this week.

"I still love to play, I know I can play at a high level," the 38-year-old quarterback said on a conference call, acknowledging he was ready to walk away from football if he received no offers.

"It was one of those things where we said if there's nothing out there, then that's our answer. But if there's an opportunity with a team ... it ended up being with this organization and that made it that much more exciting," he said.

Rivers feels he has plenty to offer even after one of the worst seasons of his career.

He threw 23 touchdown passes, his lowest total since 2007, and 20 interceptions, matching the second-highest total of his career. While some blamed the troubles on a poor offensive line or Rivers trying to do too much to rally the Chargers late in games, others contended his skills were rapidly deteriorating.

Now, with a fresh start, a strong running game and one of the league's top offensive lines, Rivers insists he will prove the critics wrong this season.

"I feel great and if I feel like I do next year then I'll be excited to keep on going, depending on how the team feels about it," Rivers said. "I do want to coach my oldest son (in high school). I have two sons, they're 12 and eight, so we've got a little time. I don't think you'll see me in the Tom Brady range, but I feel good and I feel like I can help a team win a championship."

Rivers suspected he was headed into his first foray in free agency when he tearfully told reporters at season's end he would not quit. In February, the Chargers made it official by announcing the two sides mutually agreed to part ways.

But Rivers decided he just wanted to keep playing.

And when free agency opened this week, Rivers was hopeful he could reunite with Frank Reich and Nick Sirianni, two of his former position coaches, in Indy. Reich is starting his third as the Colts' play-calling head coach while Sirianni continues in his role as offensive coordinator.

They're hoping Rivers leads them to the playoffs after the Colts stumbled to a 7-9 record last season.

First, he must beat out incumbent stater Jacoby Brissett, who struggled during the second half last season after injuring his left knee. Brissett, like Rivers, is a North Carolina State alum, but the two haven't spoken yet this week, Rivers said.

Dennis resigns as coach at Switzerland Co.

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

The tenure of Adam Dennis as head boys basketball coach at Switzerland County has come to an end after six years on the job.

Dennis resigned on March 12, shortly after the season ended. A Switzerland County graduate, Dennis had been coaching at the school for 15 years and said the decision to walk away was not an easy one.

"It's something that I've been praying about for a while. I think God was asking me to give something up and basketball was it," Dennis said. "This is my 15th year, my sixth year as head coach, and I kind of think that it might be time for a different voice."

Dennis was on the bench as an assistant for three different head coaches, working with David Todd, Brian Bowen and B.J. McAlister. When McAlister resigned after the 2013-14 season to head to New Albany as an assistant, Dennis was the easy choice to replace him.

After going 10-14 in his first year and 8-16 in year two, the Pacers had their best season under Dennis in year three, going 14-9 and winning an Ohio River Valley Conference title.

The last three years have been a struggle for the Swiss at times, dipping to 6-18 this past season. But despite the record, the Pacers were highly competitive, losing five games by four points or less and were outscored by only five points on the season. However, Switzerland ended the season on a nine-game losing streak.

"Especially the back half of the season was really weird. It was like we were playing well enough to win games, it just wouldn't happen," Dennis said. "We would lead the whole game and a kid would hit a shot at the buzzer. I don't know that I would say that it wore on me. I think it was more of a thing where I've grown a lot in the past year and a half. For a long time, basketball was the most important thing in my life and I think God was asking me to change that a little bit."

Switzerland County Athletic Director Mark Boggs, who has been friends with Dennis for decades, said he was sad to see his coach move on and that he meant more to the program than simply wins and losses.

"He is a good coach but a better person. We will miss him on the sidelines," said Boggs, who is also the girls basketball coach at the school. "He taught his players so much more than basketball. He was influential in so many ways. He required his players to maintain passing grades, higher than what the IHSAA requires. He was adamant at molding adolescents into successful citizens after high school. A true servant leader."

"Basketball is a tool to teach high school kids how to be successful afterwards and how to be disciplined and live a good life. We tried really hard to do that," Dennis said. "I hope our kids walk away and have that feeling that we tried really hard for them and tried to give them the character tools that they needed."

For now, Dennis will remain at the school as a teacher but he hasn't ruled out a return to the sidelines. For now, he's just going to see where life takes him.

"I would like to thank Mark (Boggs), David (Todd), Brian Bowen and B.J. McAlister as well as everybody else who made my dream of being the boys basketball coach at Switzerland County possible," Dennis said.

Cubs' Dyer, Watson earn Academic All-State

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison girls basketball players Jessie Dyer and Harper Watson have each been named Academic All-State Honorable Mention by the Indiana Basketball Coaches Association.

A total of 71 Indiana high school seniors — 39 boys and 32 girls — were choses as first-team selection with 188 more boys and 189 more girls earning honorable mention.

Watson

Dyer

The IBCA Academic All-State team is a program where academic prowess and athletic prowess both are considered in the selections. Items such as grade-point average, college board scores and academic class rank are considered along with athletic performance in areas such as points per game, rebounds per game and assists per game.

IBCA-member head coaches from schools across the state may nominate their seniors who meet criteria that include a 3.5 GPA or higher on a 4.0 scale, a class rank in the upper 25 percent of one's class, an SAT score of 1,100 (on the reading and math sections) or an ACT composite score of 24.

Once nominations are received, an IBCA committee reviews the information and determines awards for first team and honorable mention.

Those selected will receive certificates from the IBCA for their honor. Those certificates will be distributed to coaches at the annual IBCA Clinic on April 24-25 at Lawrence North High School in Indianapolis. The coaches then present the certificates to the honored players after they return from the clinic.

Tokyo Olympics seem sure to happen, but in 2021

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo Olympics are probably going to happen, but almost surely in 2021 rather than in four months as planned.

That became clear after the IOC on Sunday announced it was considering a postponement and would make a final decision within four weeks. Major Olympic nations like Canada and Australia have added pressure by saying they will not send teams if the games are staged this year.

International Olympic Committee President Thomas Bach sent a letter to athletes explaining the decision, while also acknowledging the extended timeline might not be popular.

"I know that this unprecedented situation leaves many of your questions open," he wrote. "I also know that this rational approach may not be in line with the emotions many of you have to go through."

The IOC's move seemed inevitable for weeks with pressure mounting from all quarters — athletes, sponsors, broadcasters, more than 200 national Olympic committees and international sports federations.

Shortly after Bach's statement, the Canadian Olympic Committee said it would not send athletes to the Olympics unless the games are postponed by a year. Australia issued a statement saying it was advising its athletes to prepare for an Olympics in 2021.

John Coates is the head of the Australian Olympic Committee and the IOC member who heads the inspection team for Tokyo.

World Athletics President Sebastian Coe sent a letter to Bach saying that holding the Olympics in July "is neither feasible nor desirable." He outlined a number of reasons, including competitive fairness, the likelihood athletes would overtrain if given a compressed schedule and the uncertainty caused by orders in many countries barring people from gyms and other workout venues.

National Olympic committees in Brazil and Slovenia had also called for postponement until 2021. Norway's Olympic body said it did not want athletes going to Tokyo until the global health crisis is under control.

The United States governing bodies of swimming and track — two of the three top-tier Summer Games sports — had called on their national Olympic officials to push for a postponement.

Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, speaking at a parliamentary session, said a postponement of the Tokyo Olympics would be necessary if the games cannot be held in a complete way.

"If it is difficult to hold (the games) in a complete way, a decision of postponement would be unavoidable," he said.
